Objectives	Philosophy has made important contributions to culture since the Hellenic civilization. This contribution contains both positive and negative lines. Philosophers have produced the most important criticisms of culture. The course aims to deepen the students understanding of culture with the help of philosophy.
Content	The course provides information about the important periods in the history of philosophy and their representatives. In different ages the question of what philosophy is has been asked. This question is still asked, and an answer is sought. This course is an introduction to the basic questions and problems philosophical disciplines. What is to exist? What can people know or not? What is the truth? How can morality be grounded and is it necessary? Different attitudes in philosophy will be critically analyzed. Classical works of philosophy will be used in the course.
